

CHART XXVIII.—Comparison of the degree of pulmonary edema and concentration of the blood in gassed animals. Cross-hatched columns represent percentage of increase in lung weight and are arranged in order. Solid black columns represent percentage of increase in red blood corpuscles. This chart clearly shows that there is no relationship between the two