

Thursday, 23 February 2012

0900-0920 Welcome (Blessé Auditorium, Willis Hall)

Guest Speaker: Mr Robert Dalessandro, Chief of Military History, US Army

0920-0945 walk to AMEDD Museum and registration

0945-1045 Session 1

A Louse-Borne Disease in the Great War

Gregory Anstead MD PhD, South Texas Veterans Healthcare System

B The role of Biomedical Sciences in World War I

John Bushrod, independent scholar

1100-1200 Session 2

A The RAMC on the Somme: British Medical Treatment in the First World War

George Thompson, independent scholar

B Alexis Carrel's Contribution to Wound Care in World War I

LG Walker Jr, MD

1200-1300 Lunch (catered)

1300-1400 Session 3

A German military medicine grapples with sexually transmitted diseases:

Prevention, control, and treatment

Dr Derek Linton, Hobart and William Smith Colleges

B In Response to Circumstances: Medical Evacuation and French Ambulance

Trains

Dr Natalia Starostina, Young Harris College

1410-1510 Session 4

A 'Kitchener's Tourists': voices of medical personnel from wartime hospital ships

Dr Carol Acton, University of Waterloo

B A White Smoke Rising: The advent of gas warfare and the RAMC response

Peter Starling, Director Army Medical Services Museum

1520-1620 Session 5

A I Can Always Serve as a Bad Example: Medical Planning for Gallipoli

Steven Oreck MD, University of Wisconsin

B The Lakeside Unit of World War I: George Crile, MD, and the Base Hospital Unit

Plan of Organization

Diane O'Malia, University Hospitals Cleveland

Jennifer Nieves, Dittrick Medical History Center

1620-1700 Tour of US Army Medical Department Museum

1700-1800 Reception at US Army Medical Department Museum

Friday, 24 February 2012

0800-0830 registration at the AMEDD Museum

0830-0930 Session 6

A American Medical Assistance in Time of War, 1914-1917

Katherine Burger Johnson, University of Louisville

B Americans under fire on the Eastern Front: Romania in World War I

Bradford Waters MD, University of Tennessee Memphis

0945-1115 Session 7

Panel A Facets of Nursing during the Influenza Pandemic

British military nurses responses to the influenza pandemic of 1918-19

Christine Hallett PhD RN, University of Manchester

The Impact of Pandemic Influenza on Base Hospital 41

Jen Telford, PhD RN ACNP, University of Connecticut

“The Second Line of Defense”: Philadelphia Nurses Respond to Pandemic Influenza

Arlene Keeling PhD RN, University of Virginia

Challenging even the most seasoned Australian military nurse: on board ships during the 1918 Influenza Pandemic

Kirsty Harris PhD, University of Melbourne

Panel B Base Hospital 28 from Kansas City

Forming Base Hospital 28 from medical resources in Kansas City

Grace Holmes MD, Kansas University Medical Center

Surgery and Anesthesia Practice in Base Hospital 28

Anthony Kovac MD, Kansas University Medical Center

Medical Practice with Particular Regard to the Influenza Epidemic

Frederick Holmes MD, Kansas University Medical Center

Pathology and Treatment of Gas Injuries at Base Hospital 28

Jason Gregory, Kansas University Medical Center

Anthony Kovac MD, Kansas University Medical Center

1130-1230 Session 8

A Mobile Hospital No. 1, A.E.F.

William Montgomery, Clarkson College

B National Guard Medical Personnel in World War I

Dr Gregory Ball, Command Historian, 24th Air Force

1230-1330 Lunch (catered)

1330-1430 Session 9

A Separating the wheat from the chaff: Physician recruitment and training in the US

Army

William Hanigan MD, University of Mississippi Medical Center

B Medical officers and military command structures: The disciplining of American military medicine
Dr David Caruso, Chemical Heritage Foundation

1445-1545 Session 10

A Food Fit for Fighting Men

Nic Clarke, University of Ottawa

B “The poor devils without noses and jaws”: wartime facial wounds and the development of maxillofacial reconstructive surgery during the Great War

Kerry Neale, University of New South Wales/Australian Defence Forces Academy

1600-1700 Session 11

A Treating the Soldier’s Psychological Wounds: US Policy-Making on Shell Shock, 1915-1925

Anessa Stagner, University of California, Irvine

B Medical Manipulation: Public Health as a political tool in the influenza epidemic in San Francisco

Kirsten Moore, Johns Hopkins University

1800-2100 Banquet (Crowne Plaza San Antonio Airport)

1800-1845 cash bar

1900- dinner

After dinner speaker: Dr Dale Smith, Chairman, Department of Medical History, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences

Saturday, 25 February 2012

0900-0915 registration at Willis Hall

0915-1015 Session 12

A From the Tabernacle to the Trenches: Divine Healing as an Alternative to Medicine in WWI

Lloyd Barba, University of Michigan

B World War I and healthy bodies in the Pacific Northwest Forest

Dr Erik Loomis, University of Rhode Island

1030-1130 Session 13

A Eyes Over There; Base Hospital #5 and Ophthalmology in World War I

Steven Newman MD, University of Virginia Medical School

B Dutch 'ambulances' in the combatant nations

Dr Leo van Bergen, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam

1145-1245 Session 14

A Georges Duhamel, writer and surgeon of the Great War

Dr Paul Gery, independent scholar