

FIG. 331.—Auditory portion of the tympanic bone, partially removed, exposing the exit of the facial nerve from the stylohyoid foramen to where it passes into the substance of the parotid gland. Mastoid cortex removed and cells evacuated—probe passed into antrum; supraauricular ridge partly removed. (Noy. The Laryngoscope, 1922)