

FIG. 23.—From a longitudinal section of the central wound region in rat's auto-nerve transplant, Experiment No. 73, 28 days after operation; pyridine-olives preparation. The figure illustrates clearly the course of the central neurones in passing through the scar tissue of the central wound. The fanular structure of the central stump is lost as the descending neurones pass through the wound.