

FIG. 187.—Marked conjunctival congestion and hordeolum of left upper lid in a case of severe mustard-gas conjunctivitis, four weeks after exposure. The hordeolum is a part of the general staphylococcus furunculosis which may characterize the later stages of the severe skin burns